A PEACE CONVENTION OF FIGHTERS

AND now they are organizing a peace convention. It is not to be composed of a lot of utopian dreamers. Nor will its membership be characterized by the weak, the pacifier, nor any other member of that class that was so numerous before the war began. It will be composed of fighters, men and women who are in favor of pushing this war to a decisive end, men and women who are determined to bring to an end for all time to come the possibility of another war. The promoters of the new organization seek to band together the right thinking peoples of the world in order that war may cease forever. But they are not preaching the religion of hate. The new organization is called the "Convention to win the war for Permanent Peace." William A. Short, its secretary, has issued a statement in which he says:

In a peculiar sense the creation of a League of Nations, the banding of the free peoples of the world together to guarantee by their joint forces the peace and progress of the world, is the outstanding thing for which America is fighting—our fundamental war aim. To hold up that purpose and make it alluring may well be one of the best ways to rouse America to a crusading spirit that shall insure the throwing of our total energies into this holy war against autocracy and militarism. To know and to feel compellingly that we are fighting for nothing less than the permanent peace of the future will put behind our every policy a passion that will not rest until the power of each individual and each community is put behind our shipping program, our food program, behind every feature of the nation's job of organizing for victory. We are calling this convention in this critical time of the war not primarily to discuss plans for a League of Nations, but to burn in on the national mind that this league or any other like scheme will not be worth a passing thought unless we win this war. The League of Nations may be the temple of international law and order for the future, but our immediate job is to clear the ground and find a safe place to lay its foundations.

This convention will be one of the significant events of the year. The nation's leaders in business, labor, agriculture and education will be there. The program that is in progress of completion will provide discussions by leaders in thought and action of the things at stake in the war and the things that must come out of it if our sacrifice and the sacrifice of all the nations is to be justified. This convention will represent no jingo attempt to organize America into a nation of haters. But it will attempt to dramatize the fact that America is fighting for a peace that will last, so that every soldier will go to the front with the crusader's spirit, and every man and woman who stays behind will be consecrated to the task of seeing that this entire nation shall, when this war ends, demand with one voice that the men who settle this war shall create such effective guarantees that, so far as humanly possible, such a war shall not be gone through with again and that the world of the future may be built upon foundations of justice, freedom and democracy.

WHAT WILL THE SAMMIE DO?

EVERY possible effort is being made by the German army leaders to obtain minute information regarding the fighting qualities of the Americans, according to a document that has been captured by members of the American army in France. The reason is obvious. Germany has taken her all on the spring campaign. The heads of her military party realize that they must bring back victory to their people or be prepared to face a revolution that in all probability will be far more terrible in every respect than the French revolution when it was at its height of terror. For Germany is seething with unrest. Peace and victory has been promised its people time after time. And each time the heads of the military party have been forced to make fresh promises. Correspondents that have returned from there recently state positively that the present drive was started and the promises of an early victory and peace were made in a desperate effort to quell the muttering and the unrest that is to be heard and seen on all sides. Having staked their all upon this last struggle it is no wonder that the German generals are seeking every bit of available information regarding the Americans.

They are meeting a new foe. And if the document that has been captured is not another piece of camouflage on the part of the Hun he may well wonder about the fighting qualities of the new factor. There are some of his officers that can tell him of one small faction, namely the engineers. Composed of an assortment of troops that had to be gathered hastily, trained more specially along engineering lines and not along the lines of artillery work, exchanging their tools for guns at the last moment, they rose to the occasion. We are told that it was a crisis in the British line. And yet fifteen hundred men followed the lead of their brigadier. They were strung along a line 1200 yards in length. Against them were sent headlong the massed formation of the enemy. Again and again was that line assaulted and again and again was the enemy thrown back demoralized and suffering frightful losses. The line held. It held on until fresh troops were brought up from the rear to take the place of the engineers. The question may well be asked, if a thin line of American engineers can put up such a battle what will the regular troops do that have been trained to such work? It is no wonder that the German generals are asking for minute information regarding the Americans.

SENATOR PITTMAN DOING POLITICS

THE press dispatches say that Senator Pittman of Nevada has left his work in the senate and is touring the state of Wisconsin in the interests of the democratic candidate of that state who is up for election next week. To the people of Nevada it would seem that Senator Pittman's place at the present time is in the halls of congress, attending to his senatorial duties, for the winning of the war, instead of doing politics in another state. The people are becoming restless over the fact that not only the representatives, but President Wilson himself, is giving more attention to politics than to the pressing needs of the country in its great need. For the first time in the history of the United States we find our President going out into one of the states and telling the people whom they should elect to represent them in congress. And we have been told by the administration that we should lay aside our partisan feelings and devote our every energies to the winning of the war, and here we have the opposite example set us by the Democrats.

We have given the administration our hearty support since the beginning of the war and have refrained from criticism, but from the disclosures in the past few days it is very evident that we are failing in our patriotic duty by keeping silent. When the administration is shown that there is a lack of production in the manufacture of airplanes and heavy ordnance for the use of our soldiers in France, and in the face of this gives all its attention to the election of a democratic senator in Wisconsin, it is time for the people to raise their voice in objection.—Elko Free Press.

ONE RESULT OF THE DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW

IN at least one case the daylight saving law has resulted in the public discovering the true ideals of a man that has been conducting a business in the community in which he lives. He had been under the suspicion of a few but there were lacking proofs that the lawyers and the law demands and for quite a long time nothing was done. But when the daylight saving law went into effect and one loyal American asked him to observe it, her request was the one spark needed to flash into flames the smoldering resentment to everything American that had been constantly filling his heart. And in the tirade that followed it became only too evident that he was an undesirable member of the community in which he had been gaining his livelihood. He was arrested and fined $50 but the indignation of the public could not be satisfied by any such reprimand. So the citizens of Manhattan gathered before his place of business and when he returned after paying his fine they gave him a canteen of water, started him on his way, told him not to come back, and to prevent him from stopping in any other community, they telephoned the surrounding towns that he was coming. They also requested that he be advised to continue on his journey. In the words of Abraham Lincoln, "You may fool all of the people some of the time and some of the people all of the time but you can't fool all of the people all of the time."

BAKERS JOIN GENERAL STRIKE AND BRING ON BREAD SHORTAGE

(By Associated Press.)
 KANSAS CITY, April 2.—Kansas City last night was facing what may prove a serious shortage of bread, as the result of the general strike called last week in sympathy with the walkout of the laundry workers. When workers in local bakeries yesterday joined the general strike an appeal was made to Herbert C. Hoover, federal food administrator, to use his authority to call the strikers back to work. In a telegram last night to State Food Administrator Mumford, Mr. Hoover asserted he was powerless to interfere. A feature of the situation lies in the fact that not only city consumers, but also troops passing through Kansas City on troop trains and soldiers in nearby training camps will feel the effects of the threatened bread shortage. All but one of the city's largest bakeries shut down yesterday. Apparently no other way is left open for a settlement of the industrial and business tie up except in threatening the matter out in mediation conferences which so far have reached no tangible point. Federal conciliators, the mayor, a citizen's committee and employers committee and representatives of labor held various sessions but efforts to get the labor men and the employers together failed. Meanwhile the general strike appears to be wearing out in spots. Street cars are running on most of the lines; part of the laundries again started operations and some of the downtown restaurants and barber shops were opened. Troops still patrol the streets and no disorders have been reported.

TO BUILD WIRELESS STATIONS IN CHINA

(By Associated Press.)
 PEKING, April 2.—Negotiations for construction of wireless stations at Chefoo, Shanghai and other points in China have been in progress between representatives of a Japanese company and the minister of the navy, Admiral Liu Kuan-hsinung, since last month, according to seemingly reliable information, says the Chinese National News Agency. A loan agreement with a Danish company has been cancelled by the Chinese government on payment of monetary compensation to the Danish firm.

The Japanese demand for the privilege of building wireless stations in China is said to be based on a claim that wireless is closely connected with the national defence of Japan. It is stated the Japanese propose to lend more money to China for the purpose under conditions similar to those proposed by the Danish firm.

It is said that the Danish firm, in order to prevent the contract going to a British concern is willing to surrender its contract to the Japanese. Protests were made both by Sir John Jordan, the British ambassador, and by Baron Hayashi, the Japanese minister, against the consummation of the Danish agreement in December. Admiral Liu is said to favor the Japanese. The wireless stations are required primarily by the Chinese navy and not at present for commercial purposes. It is announced.

RAISE MEAT PRICES

(By Associated Press.)
 CHICAGO, April 2.—Prices of the better cuts of meat were increased by 2 1/2 cents all over the country yesterday, it was announced by representatives of packing concerns. The increase was due to the lightness of cattle receipts, it was said, and it is customary at this time of the year. Abolishing meatless days had nothing to do with the increase, it was said.

MAY SHOW LENIENCY REGARDING DELAYS

(By Associated Press.)
 WASHINGTON, April 2.—Although persons who fail to have their income tax returns in the hands of revenue collectors by midnight last night, are subject to penalties, some leniency will be shown for returns which arrive today and for whose tardiness some good reason is presented, it was intimated yesterday at offices of the revenue commissioner here.

Some collectors, it was said, are expected to accept all returns arriving in today's mails without question. Technically, however, the responsibility for having the returns in collectors' offices by midnight is on the taxpayers and the excuse of belated mail service will be accepted only as a means of simplifying collectors' work.

All revenue officers were instructed to remain open until midnight last night to receive returns. These were due under the law on March 1 but Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper extended the time for a month.

COURT TO PASS ON SEIZURE OF LETTERS

(By Associated Press.)
 CHICAGO, April 2.—The question of the legality of the seizure of the letter files of Henry Wooder, general counsel for Swift & Co., on a search warrant issued under the espionage act, will be passed upon by the United States supreme court, it became known yesterday on the return of District Attorney Charles F. Clyne from Washington where he filed an appeal from the decision of the court of appeals which held that the search warrant was invalid. The papers were seized in a raid on Veeder's office by Francis J. Heney, attorney for the Federal Trade Commission. In its investigation of the packing industry. The files are still in the possession of the United States marshal.

GATHERING OF MOSS IS NEW WAR MEASURE

(By Associated Press.)
 SEATTLE, Wash., April 2.—Freshmen and sophomore girl students at the University of Washington will be required hereafter to spend two hours a week working with Sphagnum moss, in keeping with a rule adopted by the faculty as a war measure. Sphagnum moss, which is a native of the Northwest, is now greatly in demand for use in surgical pads, as it is highly absorbent.

Under the plan, Dr. J. W. Holston, professor of botany, declares it will be possible to turn out 10,000 pads weekly.
